NuMat Technologies, Inc.

Winning the inaugural National Clean Energy Business Plan Competition
Chris Wilmer, grad student
ISEN Cluster Fellow

Chris Wilmer’s research involves finding materials that can soak up greenhouse gases and store alternative energy sources (hydrogen and natural gas).

ISEN’s funding of the research led to the formation of a start up company

ISEN’s funding of NuMat led to NuMat winning at the Whitehouse.

ISEN paid $6000 for NuMat to go!

NuMat won first place! $180,000
